Leofwen Tinnier. Name. The Laurel Office modified the surname from the submitted Tinner because they felt that that spelling could not be found before the sixteenth century and that that was too great a chronological gap from the Old English given name. Therefore they substituted a spelling of the byname that could be dated to the early fourteenth century and so was not as distant in time from the period of the given name.

Olaf Wulfbrandt. Change of name from Óláfr Úlfbrandarson and change of device. Sable, a fess embattled between three crosses bottony Or. His old name, Óláfr Úlfbrandarson, is retained as an alternate persona name. The Laurel Office modified the submitted Talon mac Dubhagáin because they felt it combined a Welsh given name with an Irish patronymic which they feel violates period practice. Since they currently do allow combinations of Welsh and anglicized Irish, though it is discouraged, they modified the byname to its anglicized equivalent in order to register the name.
